Marjorie Marti Speaks Vows With Lloyd Leyerle

At a pretty candlelight wedding in St. John's Evangelical church Mokena Saturday evening, October 19 at 7:30 o'clock, Miss Marjorie Emily Marti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Immanuel D. Marti of Mokena, became the bride of Mr. Lloyd E. Leyerle, son of Mrs. Violet Leyerle, 1102 Ridgewood Avenue Joliet.

The church altar was banked with palms and vases of fall flowers. Rev. Wm. J. Riemann officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Donald Maue, cousin of the bride, presided at the organ and played a recital of appropriate music before the service. She also accompanied Mr. O. Kleslar, soloist, as he sang "Oh Promise Me" "Always" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Preceding the service, the candles were lighted by Miss Joyce Beagley, cousin of the bride, and Miss Beagley wore a white gown fashioned with a net skirt and a taffeta bodice. She wore a wrist corsage of pink roses.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white brocade satin with a yoke of white net and long, tapering sleeves with a long train. Her finger tip veil was held in place with a crown of white seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Her only jewelry was a cameo necklace worn by her mother on her wedding day 25 years ago. It belonged to the bride's maternal grandmother.

Mrs. John E. Horras of Chicago served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a gown of white net with cap sleeves, and long white net mitts. Her headpiece was a white crownless hat, she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Jean Shevlin, close friend of the bride, and Mrs. Gordon Doctor and Miss Beverly Powell, cousins of the bride served as bridesmaids. Their gowns and headpieces were identical as that of the matron of honor. Each carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Wilma Mae Maue, cousin of the bride in a gown of white net with a halo of pink roses was flower girl. She strewn petals of flowers from a white decorated small basket as she preceded the bride.

Mr. Troy Leyerle of Joliet served his brother as best man. Other attendants were Thomas Gilchrist, close friend of the groom, Arthur Beagley, cousin of the bride and Mr. Wm. Mair, uncle of the groom. The groom and his attendants wore tuxedos. The groom's boutonniere was a gardenia while the attendants wore a white carnation.

For her daughters wedding, Mrs. Marti chose a fuchsia dress with black accessories. Mrs. Leyerle chose a black crepe dress with black accessories. They both wore corsages of white baby mums.

Following the ceremony a reception and dance was held in the Frankfort school auditorium at which over 500 guests were present.

The bride's table was decorated in white and lighted with candles. The table was centered with a tiered wedding cake.

When the couple departed on a wedding trip of undisclosed destination, the new Mrs. Leyerle wore a wool plaid suit with black accessories and a yellow baby mum corsage.

APPLE CROP STOLEN

Mr. and Mrs. Rene Guindon have a red delicious apple tree on their place in Mokena which is eight years old and blossomed for the first time this spring. The hall storm knocked off all blossoms except one, and this one was anxiously watched and tenderly cared for until it produced an apple, the first one after a long wait.

Then the day came when it was decided to be just right to eat, and what a treat that would be, when lo, on going to the tree they found someone had taken it; a victim of its own luscious beauty no doubt.

HAVE YOU A GOWN ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD?

Mrs. Hugo Neithammer, who is chairman of the Fashion Show for the Mokena P. T. A. Carnival to be held Nov. 2, is sending out a call for clothes old or new to be fashioned at the Fashion Show.

The following letter is the kind we always like to receive and it speaks for itself. Every body reads the WANT ADS:

Dear Mrs. Semmler:

The thorough coverage your paper gives this and surrounding communities resulted in our selling over two hundred pounds of honey within a few hours after the paper was distributed.

Appreciatively,

The propositions to retain this most important department will come up for a vote at the November 5th election. The city of Joliet does not care if this department is retained or not as they have their city health department which takes care of all their health problems. But the problems in that department throughout the county will not be taken care of if the citizens do not vote yes on the proposition which is most important.

The work which has been done in the rural schools alone is worth it, because of the help from the school nurses, etc. Let every one who goes to the poll and every citizen should, on Nov. 5th vote in favor of this Will County Health Department.

REPUBLICAN PARTY ANSWER TO PROBLEMS OF NATION, SAYS A. F. SCHUPP

A sweeping Republican victory in the November 5 election was predicted today by A. F. Schupp, Republican County chairman, who stated that pre election public sentiment, as measured by numerous polls and straw ballots, shows an overwhelming trend toward the Republican party as "the means" for our nation from complete an and catastrophe, brought about by conflicting policies and administrative bungling in Washington and of leading the American people into an era of lasting peace and prosperity.

"More than anything else," said Mr. Schupp, "the people of this country want permanent peace and the opportunity to go forward, in the traditional American way, into an era of real prosperity. They cannot understand why, with our productive capacity at the highest point in history, our present national leaders should continually put stumbling blocks in the way of free enterprise and individual initiative.

"Our people have come to the realization that the Republican party, which is pulling together and has a strong sense of party responsibility, is the answer to the urgent problems facing our nation. It will approach our national and international problems free from the confusion and dissension that have dominated the Democratic party for many months. That the public has come to realize this fact is proved by the Gallup poll which shows that President Truman's popularity has reached a new low of 32 percent. It is also proved by the fact that more and more people including leaders, in business, labor, and agriculture, are looking to the Republican party to carry this country forward and upward to new heights of prosperity, coupled with real economic stability, in place of a 'planned economy' controlled and directed by bureaucratic theorists in Washington.

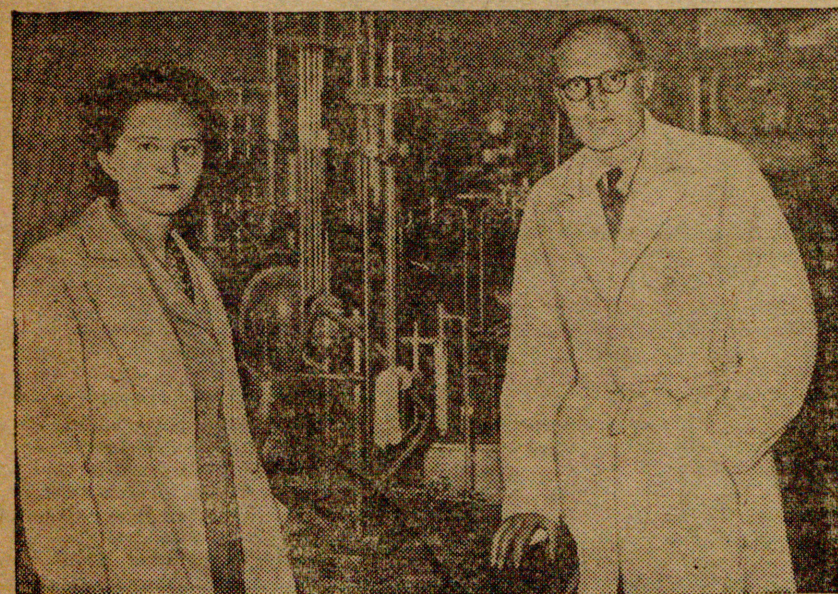

"The people of our country," concluded Mr. Schupp, "do not see any reason why we have to go into the 'boom and bust' cycle, that many of our present national leaders are holding over their heads, nor do our people accept the contention that we can not achieve lasting peace and prosperity without complex controls established and administered by Washington bureaucrats. The Republican party offers the leadership that the American people are seeking. It can and will lead our nation out of one of the most critical periods in our history."

PAUL'S WIDENING FIELD OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:1-5, 13, 14, 44-46, 48, 49; 14:26, 27.
MEMORY SELECTION — But when it pleased God . . . to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen. —Galatians 1:15, 16.

God uses men to accomplish his high and holy purpose of preaching the gospel in all the world. They must, however, be men who have been called by the Holy Spirit, prepared and sent out by him. They must be willing to labor and to sacrifice without limit for his glory.

Paul was such a man, and as we study the widening sphere of his service and influence, we catch a vision of what missions should mean in the church.

I. A Missionary Call (Acts 13:1-4).

Much discussed among earnest Christians is the question of what constitutes a missionary call.

The need must be brought home to the individual believer's heart by the Holy Spirit, and he must give a conviction that one is to go out to meet that need.

Note that the call came through a live, active and well-equipped church in Antioch, a city of Syria. It was a cosmopolitan church—read the names of those who served there. They were of many nationalities and of various occupations and social positions. In the midst of that group were two exceptionally able preachers, Barnabas and Paul. They all loved the Lord and served him.

To such a church the Holy Spirit can speak, be heard and obeyed. Notice that they gave of their best, at the direction of the Spirit, not withholding it for themselves (cf. II Sam. 24:24). Good wants our best.

Sent forth by the Holy Spirit these men went promptly and willingly. Why should the Lord have to plead, and prod, and wait for his people to obey him?

II. A Missionary Conquest (Acts 13:4, 5, 13, 14, 44-46, 48, 49).

To trace this first missionary journey it is well to look at the map illustrating the Acts and epistles at the back of most Bibles.

It will appear at once that it was not an easy itinerary these men undertook. It involved travel by sea, through difficult country, and often among hostile and hateful peoples.

God does not call his servants to an air-conditioned arm-chair evangelism. His Word must go out where it has never been heard, and that means pioneering among the most backward of peoples, the neediest of this earth. It means working in rescue missions, in thankless and difficult pastorates; yes, anywhere the Divine Executive, the Holy Spirit, may direct.

Paul met both popularity and persecution, and that not far apart. After the experience of acceptance and rejection on the island of Cyprus (Acts 13:7, 8), Barnabas and Paul went to Antioch in Pisidia (a different city than Antioch in Syria; see map). Here they were invited to preach in the synagogue and Paul was blessed in the presentation of a powerful gospel message. Read it in Acts 13:16-41. It met with such a response that the people "besought that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath" (v. 42). So great was the popularity of Paul's message that the whole city came the next Sabbath "to hear the Word of God." What a wonderful sight that must have been.

But wait—there is something else here beside popularity, and its name is jealousy (v. 45). It caused the Jews to blaspheme as they contradicted Paul's preaching.

Jealousy always makes a fool out of the one who yields to it. Yet this green-eyed monster is permitted to go right on hindering the work of God. The result in this case was that Paul turned from the Jews to the Gentiles with the gospel, to their great joy and delight. This is a great turning point in the history of the church.

Now the preachers turn homeward to Antioch in Syria, and there they had

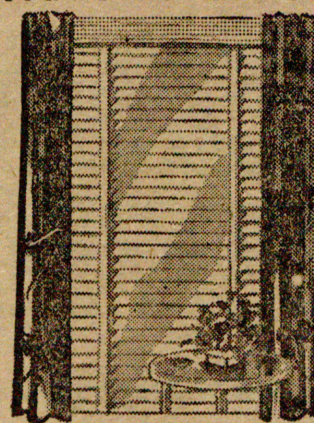

III. A Missionary Conference (Acts 14:26, 27).

Nothing stimulates missionary giving, and praying, and going in a local church like a live missionary conference, where those who have been on the field come back and tell what the Lord has done as they went out to serve him.

It is good to know that what the Lord led men out to do has been fulfilled. That completes the circle of divine guidance and blessing, and strongly encourages us to go again—and others to go for the first time—to do missionary work for God.

The church which does not have such an annual missionary conference misses a blessing and an opportunity for enlarged vision and service. No pastor or church can afford to miss such an open door for the working of the Holy Spirit of God.

Company Builds 75,000th Engine

Builders Turned Out First Locomotive Almost 109 Years Ago.

NEW YORK. — The Sandusky, a nine-ton locomotive with a towering waspwaist smokestack and a wooden open-air platform for the engineer, rolled out of the plant of the American Locomotive company at Paterson, N. J., as its engine No. 1 almost 109 years ago.

It reached a top speed of 15 miles an hour a few days later in a trial run between Paterson and Jersey City. On a special set of new type track it inched this up to 30 miles per hour. It went on to cause a lot of confusion in the Middle West.

The company has just reported that its 75,000th locomotive—a three-section, 6,000-horsepower Diesel-electric—is scheduled for completion at Schenectady, N. Y.

Not the Largest.

Prior to delivery to the Santa Fe railroad for its Chicago and Los Angeles run it will be placed on exhibition on the private railroad siding that runs underneath the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York.

The new locomotive will not be the world's largest or most powerful. American Locomotive still claims this title for a 117-foot, 7,000-horsepower engine built for Union Pacific. But it represents a considerable advance over No. 1.

A newspaper man covering the trial run of the Sandusky on October 2, 1837, was most impressed by its shrill whistle, which seemed to be particularly effective as a cow chaser. He claimed it was the first locomotive in the United States with a whistle.

The Sandusky was purchased by the Mad River and Lake Erie railroad, now part of the New York Central system. After being transported by canal and lake boat to the city for which it was named, the Sandusky was used to construct a new right of way between there and Bellevue, Ohio, a distance of 16 miles.

Changed Track Gauge.

The engine was supposedly the first locomotive to operate west of the Ohio river, and the Ohio state legislature passed a bill standardizing its 4-foot, 10-inch gauge for all Ohio tracks. This had to be changed later to fit the now standard gauge that is an inch and a half smaller.

American Locomotive's 50,000th engine, built in 1911 and considered pretty powerful then, is still in operation on the Erie commuter service between Jersey City and Tuxedo Park, N. J. The company claims that if all of its 75,000 locomotives could have been placed coupler to coupler they would have stretched from New York to Chicago.

'Superboy' Is Cute Kid, But Hard to Live With

MINNEAPOLIS.—Bobby (Superboy) Calguire, who is 10 months old, shoved a chair against his mother's shins today, waltzed across the room and took a vicious kick at a bedraggled pup huddled in a corner.

Then, he sat down hard and belted distinctly, "Mama."

He's a cute kid—but he's wearing the family down.

Bobby, who weighs 23 pounds, has been cutting such capers since he was seven months old, and Minneapolis doctors, to say nothing of his parents, are completely baffled.

"None of the other children ever acted like that," apologized Bobby's mother.

His father, Anthony, a press worker, agreed that his son was a bit unusual.

"He wasn't content with teething rings and rattles," Calguire said, "so I brought him a football and basketball several weeks ago."

Already, Bobby has been pitching the pigskin around the house, and his father thinks he'll grow up and play football for the University of Minnesota.

But Bobby's mother, who has three other children to worry about, just thinks he's "an awful lot of trouble."

"Doctors say Bobby's just about the most unusual baby they've ever seen, and very precocious too."

Coast to Coast for Dollar Is Promised

Device to Produce Power for Railroad Use.

BUFFALO, N. Y. — A patent has been applied for by the Buffalo Machinery company for a device designed to produce an atomic gas eventually expected to power locomotives from coast to coast for a dollar.

Vice Pres. F. Alden Miller said the firm had developed a rectifier which produces a combustible gas from a commercial type of atomic "C" uranium.

The device, he added, had been "producing gas successfully for six months."

He described the experimental model as about 24 inches high, tubular in shape and built of inch-thick high-tensile steel to withstand a pressure of 6,000 pounds a square inch.

The device, Miller said, contained a chamber for a six-ounce charge, consisting of 1/640 of a grain of atomic "C" dissipated into six ounces of inert material (wood ash).

Saturated with water, the charge produced a gas for which no name has yet been chosen.

"The substance emerges a drop at a time in the form of a goosy mass," Miller said. "When it reaches the air, it is dried by the 170-180 degree (Fahrenheit) temperature produced in the rectifier."

"As it dries, the released gas burns just like ordinary illuminating gas."

Acknowledging that the present costs were high, Miller said that "the best advice we can get indicate that atomic 'C' eventually can be bought for between 50 cents and a dollar a pound."

"It would take only about one pound to operate a locomotive for four days—long enough to travel from coast to coast," he added.

He said availability of the material depended on the government's control plans.

502 Japanese Plants

Listed for Seizure

TOKYO. — Gen. Douglas MacArthur listed 502 Japanese plants for possible removal as reparations payments and instructed the U. S. 8th army to take immediate custody and control of designated factories.

The plants have been selected to cut down Japan's production potential to limits set by the Allied Far Eastern commission.

Eight industries were represented on the list, including machine tools, iron and steel, chemicals, shipbuilding and munitions.

Aircraft factories, government arsenals and scientific laboratories previously were named as potential reparations material. Nations which will receive the plants will be determined later.

Two Parachute to Safety

From Fiery Jet Plane

BUFFALO, N. Y. — Chalmers ("Slick") Goodlin, 23, Bell Aircraft corporation test pilot, and his companion, Charles L. Fay, 29, parachuted to safety shortly before a jet-propelled P-38 in which they were flying crashed in flames in suburban East Amherst.

Bell officials said Goodlin reported he had noticed one wing of the plane catch fire about 20 minutes after it had left Niagara Falls airport and notified Fay, a project engineer riding as an observer, to bail out.

Goodlin remained in the plane until the right wing "almost burned off," the company said. Neither man was injured. Goodlin is one of three persons sharing in the $19,200 prize money captured at Cleveland, Ohio, by Alvin (Tex) Johnston, who won the Thompson Air race.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.
Why not try Doan's Pills? You will

DOAN'S PILLS

The Sweeping Tides

by H. M. EGBERT

W. N. U. SERVICE

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St. Victor, Canada. Nat Page, another American, is his assistant. Madame Madeleine Kinross, a young and pretty widow who owns the timberland on which Mark is operating, has requested that Mark cancel the lease. Mark has refused.
Madame Kinross' lawyer, Horace Brou-sac, has offered Mark $6,000 to give up the lease, but Mark has also turned this offer down. After a conference with Louis Larousse, the foreman, Mark gets lumbering operations running smoothly, although the French-Canadian workmen are suspicious and vaguely hostile. Then suddenly they demand double wages and threaten to strike if refused.

CHAPTER IV

If Broussac had paid them each fifty dollars, they would have thrown up five dollars a day, let alone two.
His decision had been the one they wanted.

He had already received one package of bills from his bank in Quebec. Another was waiting for him at Alphonse Vitard's post office. And it was quite plain to Mark that Vitard had heard the news. There was a look of smug satisfaction on his face and there was the same furtive whispering in St. Victor.

Mark paid off his men late that afternoon. Some were still sullen, especially Larousse, some, strangely, even a little respectful.

"I'd like to get the hang of this thing," he told Nat. "Of course, we can float that lumber later in the year, but it means importing fresh labor, and the hire of two schooners twice over. We can stand it. I wonder if Broussac thought the loss would bankrupt us."

"I'd have paid them five dollars till we got that lumber through,
and then fired the lot," said Nat.

"They'd have raised the ante to seven," said Mark grimly.

He went to bed in no very contented frame of mind. He had been counting on that lumber. Now it was likely to be touch and go unless he could raise a little more capital from his backers. Still, looking over the situation he didn't see what other course he could have taken.

He was half-dressed next morning when Nat came into his room.
"Madame Kinross and Larousse are waiting to see you," he informed him, "and the cabins have been vacated."

"What?"

"Every living soul gone."

In the office Madeleine Kinross was waiting, Larousse standing behind her, cap in hand. The moment
Mark entered, the girl burst out:

"I was ready to fight you in any fair way, Mr. Darrell, but I will not be a party to this. Nor Larousse.
It was he came and told me last night."

"I am a poor man," shouted Lar-ousse, beating his chest. "What can I do when I am offered a hundred dollars to strike?"

"Who offered you a hundred dollars?" asked Mark quietly.

"Alphonse Vitard, le maire!"

Mark breathed deeply. He had always suspected that the mayor, storekeeper and postmaster was acting as Broussac's chief agent.

"You know what has happened?"

asked Madame Kinross.

"The men seem to have disappeared."

"Yes, they've all got homes in St.
Victor. But they spent all the night emptying the skids. And the logs have jammed at the channel of the gorge, just above the dam. You're going to lose your lumber and your boom. And I say I will not be a party to this treachery. I came to tell you so!"

Her eyes were glowing, her breast rose and fell quickly under the influence of her emotion. Mark turned to Larousse.

"You're a good peavy man!"

"Monsieur, one man could not break that jam. It is piling up deeper every moment. It means death to venture out on those logs in the current."

Mark turned to Nat and translated quickly. "I'm going to break that jam," he said. "You go to the dam and see if they've closed the spillways. If they have, open them, to draw off some of the water. Thank you, Madame Kinross."

"Bring me a peavy," Mark shouted to the weedy Pipelon, who had been taking in every word in amazement.

Larousse Helps Mark Break the Log Jam

Mark saw the jam now. Fifty thousand logs, forming a fantastic bridge between shore and shore,
each end of it anchored to the rocks and the shoal ice. And fifty thousand more behind, dumped from the skids, battering and ramming this bridge, like the charge of wild guerrilla horsemen, mounting it, welding into it, and perpetually dissolving.

A slow, undulatory motion, the outer logs revolving round and round the key logs of the center. But that center was bending inward under the pressure of the battering logs behind. It was a matter of minutes, perhaps, before the whole mass would dissolve into fantastic chaos, sweep over the dam, and smash the boom below, to spill itself across the St. Lawrence.

There was just the one chance. If Mark could find the key logs of the jam, and pull them away, then,
instead of the sudden, irresistible charge of two thousand cords of lumber, the mass might go over the dam lightly enough for the boom
to withstand the impact.

In which case, the whole mass
would come to rest in the basin underneath the dam.

Peavy in hand, Mark leaped out upon the mass of churning logs, riding them as they slipped beneath his impact, forcing his way toward the place which he had already discerned as the key to the jam.

Here, some hundred logs were piled up in a fantastic structure.
One of these was the key log. Remove this, and the whole architectural scheme would crumble and dissolve.

Another man was straddling the logs beside him. Mark recognized Louis Larousse. And suddenly the imminent danger made them comrades—suddenly Mark knew that he could trust Larousse.

Straddling the sliding, bobbing logs, until they reached the heart of the wedge, the two moved side by side.

"She is there!" Louis shouted,

Suddenly the whole piled-up mass
dissolved in ruin.

pointing to a log wedged in the heart of the upheaved mass.

Mark recognized the key; only a man trained through years of white water work would have recognized
it. Remove that log, and the whole mass would sweep over the dam.
God help the boom! It must hold or crash, but the jam must be broken.

Side by side, their peavies sunken into the key log, the two worked.
Not force of brute strength; just the delicate finesse of artistry. Side by side, with the torrent churning about them. This was living! Mark felt an immense exultation in his heart as the peavies pecked at the key log, turning it this way and that.

The structure above it was tottering. The key log was loosening.
Suddenly it gave. Suddenly the whole piled up mass dissolved in ruin. The white water leaped up like clutching hands. Mark slipped and went down.

Louis Larousse had him in his arms. Mark was again straddling the leaping, churning logs as they raced toward the dam. He leaped from one to another until he reached shore. There he sank down, utterly spent.

Not too much, however, to follow
the rush of the piled up logs through the narrow channel of the St. Victor. In a moment the dam was black with two thousand cords of pulpwood, whirling over the rushing waters, leaping into the pool below,
battering against the boom.

Broussac Takes Another Defeat

And it held! It held! Mark, sitting, gasping, upon the bank, saw the mass of logs hammer against the boom, recoil, and slowly come to ease in the pool. And an immense exultation filled his heart. He had won, had snatched victory out of the impossible. He had saved his lumber, and, if he could obtain help, he could put it through the mill and into the hold of the waiting schooner!

Somewhere in the vicinity, he was convinced, he could obtain workers.

Larousse jerked him to his feet,
his face tense with emotion.

"Voila!" he shouted. "The boom holds! You have saved your lumber, Monsieur Darrell."

"Thanks to you, Louis," answered
Mark, swaying a little in the big man's arms.

Louis Larousse was shouting and gesticulating to Madeleine Kinross, who was running up the bank of the gorge. "The lumber is saved!" he cried, pointing down to the boom,
where the two thousand cords now lay peacefully, buffeting one another as the current swept them.

The girl came up to Mark. Her eyes, pools of dark gray, were fixed on his. "I'm glad," she cried. "I'm glad!"

Suddenly Mark remembered what Father Lacombe had told him about her marriage to the seigneur, half-an-hour before the sealing-fleet
sailed for the Newfoundland shores.
He stared into her white face, and turned his eyes aside. For he knew that he loved her, and had loved her since the moment of their first meeting. And they seemed destined to be eternal enemies.

Broussac had come back, and was occupying the long, yellow house overlooking the harbor, where, being unmarried, he resided in the summer with an old housekeeper.
He had returned as he always did,
on the eve of the departure of the sealing-fleet, to adjust partnership contracts and last minute difficulties.

Mark's retrieving of his lumber
had suddenly made him a person of consequence in St. Victor. Nobody dreamed that he would straddle the logs in the rush of the torrent, and break up a jam. The habitant loves and admires courage
more than any other quality. St.
Victor had never thought of Mark as a man of efficiency—merely as an outsider who had come there to fling away his money for the benefit of the inhabitants.

There was the same whispering,
the same sudden cessation of conversation when he entered the postoffice, but there was a new deference, even though his men were on strike for that ridiculous five dollars a day. He had conquered—but
St. Victor didn't know it yet.

Perhaps Broussac did. Mark never saw the lawyer, who remained secluded in the long, yellow house.
People wondered how Broussac
could afford to stay away from Quebec, where he had a flourishing law firm, but Broussac's interests were innumerable.

Not the least of them was Madeleine Kinross. Mark saw them riding together, and wondered if the lawyer was anything to the girl. At such times a spasm of fierce jealously would shake him. Mark felt in a dim way that it was more than the seigniorial trees that he had come for.

His two schooners lay off the flume, waiting for their load of lumber. It was five days since the attempt to break the boom had failed, but the lumber still lay in the lake, in default of labor to put it through the mill.

"We're losing a neat little sum of money, keeping those two schooners waiting on the job," said Nat Page.

It wasn't so much, but the schooner captains were getting their five dollars a day, and each vessel had two hands; then there was the cost of the hiring.

"I'm going to wire a labor exchange to send me thirty men from up-river tomorrow," answered Mark.

But that wasn't exactly what he wired. He wired asking whether thirty men were available, at a daily wage of two-fifty knowing that the news would be all over St. Victor within a few minutes after Alphonse Vitard, the mayor, storekeeper, and postmaster, had sent off the dispatch.

As soon as Mark had sent his message, Monsieur Vitard hurried across the street to confer with Hector Mackintosh, the storekeeper. Mark had some business with the captain of one of his lumber schooners. When he got back, the street was lined with men, furtively
and imploringly watching him.

Back to Work At $2 a Day

Two-fifty a day for outside labor!
Perhaps, if they hadn't been such fools, Mark might have raised their wages to that sum. They cursed Broussac, in the long, yellow house,
who had persuaded them to strike,
giving them a small sum of money,
and telling them that God would provide a way. There were plenty of starving mouths in St. Victor.

Big Louis came to Mark that evening. "I think the men are ready to come back to work for you, Monsieur," he said.

"I'll see them when they think they're ready," answered Mark.
Walking into town next day, he picked up a telegraphic dispatch
that Monsieur Vitard had received,
"Can send you all the men you need." He guessed then that the battle was won.

It was late that afternoon when a little column of men appeared at the mill office. At their head strode Louis, like an officer marshalling
his company.

Mark went to the door, and the column formed into a ragged line.
Mark recognized his former workers, shamefaced and a little sullen,
but unmistakably penitent.

"Monsieur, these men say that they wish to return to work for you," Louis announced. "They say they were misled in regard to the rate of wages prevailing. They will gladly work for you at the same rate that they were getting before they struck, though they would like the extra fifty cents a day that you are willing to pay for outside labor."

Mark looked at the line of pathetic
faces.

SHERIFF

22 YEARS OF HONEST SERVICE TO THE PUBLIC

James E. Clark

FOR SHERIFF OF WILL COUNTY

A MAN WITH A RECORD AND NOT A POLITICIAN
The citizens of Rural Will County are entitled to the best of Candidates to occupy their County Offices.

The Office of Sheriff is the most important of all, as it sometimes means life and death, therefore, the Democratic party has drafted the most outstanding Law-Enforcing Officer of the Joliet Police Department, Captain James Clark, who has 22 years of Honest and Fearless service, as a Police Official, a man whose record is above reproach, a man who has been shot in the performance of his duties, a man who has worked on the farm until his entry into World War I, one who understands the rural citizens needs.

JAMES CLARK has no backing of gambling or slot machine operators, only good honest citizens, who want to keep Will County free of Crime and Racketeers.

qualified to fill the position of County Treasurer. By his experience, he should be well Treasurer.

James Clark Democratic Candidate For Sheriff of Will Co.

On November 5th you will have the opportunity to vote or and fill a very important office, the office of Sheriff of Will County. Therefore, it is important that you know something about the man you select for this office.

I, James Clark, the Democratic candidate, was born in Kendall County, moved to Joliet when 5 years old. After finishing school, I worked on the farm, until my entry into World War I, in 1918, in which I saw service in France. After my release from the army, I worked at the Ruberoid Company for 4 years. I then joined the Joliet Police Department March 22, 1924, where I have been employed since. I have been promoted to a Captain and have an excellent record as a Law-enforcement Officer.

Rufe's Ramblings

The last time when I was down home I was walking along an old familiar road when I recognized a lady ahead of me. Thirty years is not too long for me to remember a lady, especially when she happened to be a childhood sweetheart of mine I sauntered along behind and listened to her talk to the gentleman who was with her. They seemed to be having a heated argument. I can't tell you what it was about because my mind went traveling to the days way back yonder when she and I walked together. I thought about the time when we went to the corn shuckin' and the woman was there with her three year old and the nurse who was kept busy minding him. Every time the little fellow would scream out the mother would holler, "Let him have what he wants and quit contrariying him", and then go right on talking to whoever she was with. After a while he got to chasing butterflies. He ran around the corn crib after one and about the time the nurse was putting forth her best interference he let out a whoop which might have been envied by an Apache Indian. Of course the mother stormed her usual order about not contrariying him and the nurse yelled back, "He's got wanted he wanted." And to think that thirty years later I should be walking along listening to an argument between my childhood sweetheart and her husband. I know some of you may think this Rambling is "sour grapes", but he and the baby both showed that they didn't know the difference between a butterfly and a hornet and I didn't get stung.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

On Playing
the Fiddle Badly

A favorite recreation in our town is getting together in one or another's home and making music. There's somebody at the piano; a guitar; a fiddle player; and Molly Birtles even has a harp!

What comes out isn't the best music in the whole world. In fact, a lot of it is downright bad. But nobody even thinks to question or to criticize.

Because the spirit of harmony is there—harmony between folks who like each other's company, who enjoy the simple, homey atmosphere —with nothing more exciting than old songs, and a glass of moderate beer or cider.

From where I sit, it's a heap more important to be a poor fiddle player, than not to play at all. More important to be a part of the American scene—with its community music, home entertainment, friendly glass of beer—than to hold out for professional perfection. (Besides, I like to play the fiddle—even badly!)

Why We Should Vote To Retain The Will Co. Health Dept.

The value of a well organized health department has long been demonstrated in large cities, but only in recent years have similar protective services been provided for rural communities.

For the past four years Will County has been privileged in having one of the few County Health Departments in the State of Illinois. Every individual in this area has been helped either directly or indirectly by these services. Present Health Department activities for Will County include Control of Communicable diseases; a Social Hygiene Clinic; Sanitation; Infant, Pre-school, and School Health Services; Dental Health, Child Guidance Clinic; Tuberculosis Control; Health Education; Laboratory Diagnostic Services; Distribution of Biologic Products; and Vital Statistics.

Few persons have had the opportunity of becoming acquainted with more than one or two of the Divisions of the County Health Department. Therefore let us consider this week a few of the major health functions of the first three of the divisions listed above.

Control of preventable diseases heads the list of Department functions. When a communicable disease which requires a quarantine placard is reported to the Health Department, the Public Health Nurse who has been assigned to the area visits the home. The nurse demonstrates to the family the proper nursing care for the patient and collects the necessary information for reporting the case. In the more serious diseases the Health Officer also visits the home for the purpose of finding the source of the infection, in order to prevent further spread. Immunization against communicable diseases for children not previously protected is encouraged through group immunization programs for schools. These are held in cooperation with the County Medical Society and sponsoring community groups.

The Social Hygiene Clinic is another division of the County Health Department. It protects your community through the control of the venereal disseases. The important phases of this division are the early diagnosis with the immediate referral to the family physician for treatment of every person found infected with a venereal disease. The needy cases are treated in the Social Hygiene Clinic. In addition to the intensive contact and source tracing the spread of the venereal diseases is also prevented through patient and contact education which is given by a special venereal disease nurse in the essential facts of disease diagnosis, treatment, and prevention. Arrangements are made for care of the early cases at the Intensive Treatment Centers and for central nervous system syphilis cases which are sent for Fever Therapy. Consultant service and drugs for private physicians is also provided through the Clinic.

The Environmental Sanitation Program includes supervision and inspection of milk pasteurization plants, swimming pools, tourist camps, sewage treatment works, and in communities which have food ordinances of food handling personnel, methods, equipment, and restaurant premises. Advisory service is available to persons concerned with proper location and construction of new wells. Sampling for the determination of bacterial quality of the water of private wells is made upon request.

During the past year the Will County Health Department spent from Local and State funds on a 20-80 basis, approximately sixty cents per person. They have provided generalized and uniform health services throughout the county.

It would be difficult, as well as expensive, for any small community within the County to continue to support and to direct the services of all the Divisions of the present health plan for their local area. For an example, let us take a community in Will County of one thousand people. Can they provide the citizens in their community with complete local public health services for a tax levy of one dollar per person? In other words they would have a working capital of one thousand dollars for employing personnel and for providing health services.

However, if villages and sparsely settled districts organize with their neighbors on a County wide basis, a uniform health service with specialized personnel can be provided for Will County for approximately one dollar per person. The cost of a county health department varies with the area, population, taxable resources, and the willingness of the people to provide themselves with adequate health services.

At the November 5 election the people of Will County will decide if they are to retain the Will County Health Department or if each village or community is to be responsible for the health program of their own area. Will County is just one of the eighteen counties in the State interested in having a planned public health program, so that uniform health services will be available for all areas within their county. Other counties voting at the November 5 election on the special tax for maintaining a county health department are Lee, Peoria, Fulton, Morgan, Alexander-Pulaski, Rock Island, Lawrence-Wabash, Shelby, Effingham, Dewitt-Platt, and Johnson-Pope-Hardin-Massac.

The functions of other Divisions of the Will County Health Department will be discussed in next week's issue.

Listen for the Will County Health Department radio broadcast every Wednesday evening, at 8:15 o'clock.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 20, was:

"DOCTRINE OF ATONEMENT"
The Golden Text was:

"All things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation" (II Cor. 5: 18).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him... The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world... Again the next day after John stood, and two of his disciples; and looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, Behold the Lamb of God!" (John 1: 18, 29, 35, 36).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"The invisible Christ was imperceptible to the so-called personal senses, whereas Jesus appeared as a bodily existence. This dual personality of the unseen and the seen, the spiritual and material, the eternal Christ and the corporeal Jesus manifest in flesh, continued until the Master's ascension, when the human, material concept, or Jesus, disappeared, while the spiritual self, or Christ, continues to exist in the eternal order of divine Science, taking away the sins of the world, as the Christ has always done, even before the human Jesus was incarnate to mortal eyes" (p. 334).

The ideas and reactions of this group were very interesting and will be of great help in shaping a recreation program. The seventh and eighth grade mothers were hostesses for the evening.

Mrs. Arthur Eisenbrandt entertained a group of eight children in her home Oct. 19 to celebrate her son Gerald's 4th birthday anniversary. Gerry received many nice presents. Ice cream cake and other goodies were enjoyed by the children and other guests who were present. All had a very pleasant afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warning returned to their home last Friday after spending six weeks in Wasaw, Ind., in the home of their daughter Fern and family, keeping house for them while they were on a vacation touring the West. They toured over 7000 miles, spending some time in Portland, Ore., with the Hoffman family and renewed old acquaintances. Mrs. Hoffman was the former Pearl McGlashen, who was born and spent her youth here on the old McGlashen farm. Pearl and Fern were schoolmates.

John Kirincich

Republican Candidate for

SHERIFF

Will Represent
ALLThe People of
Will County

THE WORKINGMEN

want John Kirincich for Sheriff. They know from his past record as a law-enforcing officer in Joliet and Will County that he is fair, friendly, and considerate to the worker, never resorting to intimidation or coercion. They will support at the polls the man they can trust as a respected citizen and a Sheriff who will enforce the law fairly for ALL the people.

THE FARMERS

know how John Kirincich has always cooperated with the country folks in Will County. He understands the protection problems of the farmer and his family who are distant from the city and neighbors. As an investigator for the State's Attorney's office, he has cooperated closely with the "F" men and other farm groups in keeping rural crime out of Will County.

THE BUSINESSMEN

want John Kirincich because they know him to be capable and qualified to hold the office of Sheriff. He has proved that he will enforce the law without fear or favor and that he will follow through to the arrest of the offender. Businessmen know that John Kirincich will keep his pledge to keep the racketeers out of Will County.

THE EX-SERVICEMEN

and the ex-service women, who have sacrificed so much to protect our land of freedom and peace-loving people from the forces of aggression, are entitled to the assurance that their own homes and families will be protected against law-offenders. They know that John Kirincich is qualified to protect our community and will do his job fearlessly and fairly.

THE MOTHERS

will vote for John Kirincich, because they rightfully demand that Will County be a safe and wholesome place in which to raise their children. His past record as a law-enforcing officer proves that the mothers of Will County can trust him to keep their community clean and safe for everyone.

JOHN KIRINCICH merits the support of all the citizens of this community and of Will County on his record of enforcing the law honestly and fairly for ALL the people. Formerly a deputy sheriff under the late Oliver Flint, and for the last 10 years a member of the Joliet City Police Department, and assigned to the State's Attorney's office as an investigator, he has made an outstanding record as a fair-minded and fearless law-enforcing officer. John Kirincich was born, raised, and educated in Joliet. He is married and lives with his wife and two children at 306 Ruby Street. He is needed as Sheriff of Will County to continue the faithful service to the public which he has given in the past.

"I'M A FARMER* IN NORTHERN ILLINOIS"

"I've farmed in Northern Illinois for about 50 years. The land is rich and it's a help to me to be near the biggest food-processing center in the country. The corn and milk I produce is only a few hours away from the large distributing center in Chicago. My family has been farming around here for a long time and we've seen this land grow more productive every year. I've brought up my children and educated them here in Northern Illinois. They're staying to work and live here, too."

This man is typical of the progressive farmers of Northern Illinois. There is an abundance of good roads and railroads to get their products to all of the country's large marketing centers. This same transportation network plus the area's diversified industrial facilities combine to provide the finest machinery and equipment with which to work.

In Northern Illinois, electricity helps make farms great producers. This Company is continuing a long-standing program of rural line extensions which today makes this service available to more than 95% of the farms in the territory. The towns serving the needs of these progressive farmers are well-developed communities with good stores, shops, sound banks, fine schools.

This Company, too, is an essential part of Northern Illinois, and has great confidence in its future. The theme of this advertisement is similar to one of a series being published in magazines and newspapers throughout the country to point out the many industrial advantages available here.

If you know of any business seeking a new location, please inform us so that in cooperation with other agencies interested in the progress of Northern Illinois, we can furnish complete factual information on the area.

The spotlight of safety education for Indiana and Illinois school children focuses during October on school safety patrol with the distribution by the Chicago Motor Club to class rooms throughout its territory of posters counseling youngsters to "Obey Your Safety Patrol." Regarded by safety authorities as the most important activity in school children's protective safety, the know-how of effective school safety patrol work is clearly outlined in material supplementing the posters to aid teachers in applying the lessons to students of all ages under the differing conditions which may prevail in individual localities. The poster is dramatically illustrated with a prize-winning drawing by a school child in a recent nation-wide contest.

Are Chemical Fertilizers Ruining Our Soil and Health?

"The above just came to our attention. It is along the same line of literature as 'Plowman's Folly' which claims you ought to throw away your plow and use fish worms," states Farm Adviser C. A. Hughes.

"Fortunately the average farmer pays little attention to such nonsense and uses his lime, phosphate and potash as he needs it and has money to buy it. Instead of these things causing hang-nails, rheumatism, rickets, hiphains, as claimed, he produces good milk, beans and beef for food for millions.

"To those who do take these things seriously may we remind them of these facts:

1. Such farming methods are advocated by no agricultural experiment station or College of Agriculture. No soil scientist or physician of eminence advocates any such methods.

2. Some time ago we viewed the skeleton of a prehistoric people who lived "naturally". A scientist with medical training happened to be making an examination of these remains and pointed out unmistakable evidences of many diseases, some of malnutrition. He also stated he had examined Egyptian mummies and found the same thing, and stated that these people lived only short lives.

3. We are told that in old countries like China, where limited mineral fertilizers are used and composts are all they know, natives are pitiful and undernourished.

4. We have seen people in southern poor-land "piney woods" locations where chemical fertilizers and lime are almost unknown and they usually are emaciated, have rickets, are listless and to be pitied.

5. Last spring we stopped at the Georgia coast plains agricultural experiment station. These coastal soils are usually sterile, almost agriculturally valueless land. We saw fields that had been thoroughly fertilized growing grasses and legumes adapted to the south, with a herd of Jersey cows grazing. If any man could see these sleek, well fed cows—perfect picture of health, due to chemical soil treatment, and go a couple of miles over and see some of the "piney woods" knot headed native cattle with much of southern Georgia to roam over, how in the thunder he could tolerate the thought that chemical fertilizers were ruining the soil and undermining the health of these Jersey cows, is beyond any realm of reason.

6. Any average farmer who is making a living producing good corn, good milk, good tomatoes and good hogs that catches the eye of the fellow in the market, does not pay any attention to these fine spun arguments about fish worm farming.

7. Any kid who has ever stuck a fish worm on a fishing hook knows that fish worms are found where organic matter is. They do not make organic matter, they eat it. Plow down manure, clover, etc., and if it is not too dry, you will find fish worms. They are incidental.

"The reasoning of the fish worm scientist is wholly illogical.

It is like the following reasoning: a. There are no movies in "darkest" Africa. b. Civilized countries have movie shows. c. Therefore, the way to civilize Africans is to send movies to Africa.

"Fortunately farmers are not much concerned about these theories of soil building that have only tales and no experimental or scientific basis," concludes Farm Adviser Hughes. "Organic matter is important and it will continue to go out to fields in regular manure spreaders, and be plowed down as alfalfa and clover, and farmers will continue to test his soil to learn if it is short on limestone phosphorus or potash and to supply these deficiencies where they exist. He knows more people suffer ill health because not enough, instead of too much, is used. Practical farmers are not going to make huge compost heaps of manure, leaves, straw, layers of dirt and water it down with a hose, and then spread it on his land without any fertilizer. His costs would bankrupt him, and his field would still grow nubbins and small potatoes. Neither are our implement manufacturers going to quit making plows and tillage implements. This is the first time we ever took out to mention the above in print, and it will be a long time before we will do so again. The real farmers and implement manufacturers of this county and experiment stations, are still sane," ing.

War Dept. Announces Plans For Integration Of R.A. Officers

The war department announced today through its U. S. Army Recruiting Station at 1602 Otto Boulevard, Chicago Heights, that approximately 70,000 applicants for regular army commissions under the first integration program earlier this year are being notified that they are under consideration for addition vacancies existing under congressional action authorizing an increase in the regular army officers corps strength from 25,000 to 50,000.

It was also disclosed that on a date to be announced, additional applications for commissions will be accepted. Those who qualify under a processing program paralleling closely that employed to select an initial increment of 9,813 officers late in June will be added to the consideration list and given equal opportunity on the basis of qualification with those already listed.

While machinery for accepting additional applications is not yet functioning, full details are expected to be announced shortly and the program gotten under way probably by October 15.

It was pointed out that original applicants not along the initial 9,812 giving regular army commissions may assume they are on the consideration list unless they have been formally notified by the war department to the contrary. Those who have been notified of rejection will not be eligible. Others will be permitted to restate their interest in being commissioned as a regular officer and to change their choice of branches, if they so desire, before the integration of the 25,000 new regular officers is begun, regardless of whether they are still on active duty or have reverted to civilian status.

Tentative plans for integration of these officers call for appointments to be made in four increments in January, May, September and December of '47.

Auto. Telephones As New Project

For some time officials of the Illinois Bell Telephone company have been working on a project by which they could install a telephone in an automobile, just as radios are thus installed. This has now been perfected to such a degree that now telephones can be installed in cars, such as police officers, ambulances, and all emergency cars, in the Cook county area.

A tall pole was installed this summer in the rear of the telephone building in Tinley Park as an aerial for this purpose and those who desire this service may apply at the telephone company.

A new application of the mobile telephone, utilizing it to speed aid to distressed motorists needing service on the highways, was revealed today by Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. He announced the first installation on an emergency road service unit of a mobile radio telephone, permitting dispatching from headquarters of service trucks direct from one road call to another.

"One key unit of our road emergency fleet is equipped and in operation with a mobile telephone, and mobile telephones soon will be operating on many of our trucks," Mr. Hayes stated. "Our experience already demonstrates that these mobile telephone units facilitate the speed and efficiency of our emergency road servicing by enabling service trucks to be dispatched direct from one road emergency to another without returning to garages for orders and routings."

DANCE IN LEGION HALL
JOLIET, OCT. 25 TO OBSERVE NAVY DAY

Navy Day, Oct. 27 will be observed by some 1,700 members of the Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps who have returned to their Will County homes from all parts of the world during the past year.

Highlighting the program now being planned for the celebration of Navy Day is a ball to be staged at the American Legion ballroom, Joliet, Oct. 25 to which all men and women of the Navy, Coast Guard, and Marine Corps will be admitted free. A popular ten piece orchestra has been engaged for the occasion. It has been suggested that men and women who served in these branches of service may don their uniforms for the occasion if they so desire, but it is not compulsory.

The Joliet Navy League, the civilian arm of the Navy, of which W. J. Murdoch of Joliet, is president, has been designated by the Secretary of the Navy to sponsor the annual observance.

October 27 was selected as Navy Day for the primary reason that on that day in 1775 the first resolution to authorize American warships in defense of the colonies was introduced into the Continental Congress. The measure was passed three days later. Congress, in session in Philadelphia, authorized the formation of battalions of Marines a few days later, on Nov. 10, 1775.

Veterans SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Vets Subsistence Allowance

Recent legislation placing a limitation on subsistence allowances for veterans enrolled under the G.I. Bill for education or training who are obtaining compensation on the side has brought a flood of inquiries about the new VA regulations concerning this phase.

Briefly, the new law provides that "in no event shall the rate of such allowance plus the compensation received exceed $175 per month for the veteran without dependents or $200 per month if he has a dependent or dependents." The limitation applies to veterans whether they are earning money outside while going to school or earning wages in apprentice or on-the-job training. In other words, if a veteran is going to school and earning $150 per month on the outside, his subsistence would be cut from $65 per month to $25 per month to come within the $175 per month limitation, if he is without dependents.

Veterans administration says that for perhaps three months, perhaps longer, veterans will get the same amount they have been getting in the past, but that enclosed with each check mailed up to October 31 will be a notice from the VA describing the changes in the G.I. Bill and warning each veteran that he later may have to return some of the money he now is receiving in subsistence allowance during this interim period. The same notice asks each veteran to give his training officer or regional office not later than November 5, a statement of his earnings during August, September and October. Veterans are warned that further checks will be delayed until this notice is received, so they should be sure to meet the November 5 deadline. After the veteran has turned in his notice, VA will start making adjustments in any subsistence allowance that requires changes. If there is a refund due the government, however, no time limit is set for returning this money.

Questions and Answers

Q. My husband served 14 months in the merchant marine, 12 months of this overseas. Is he eligible for the draft?—Mrs. R. M. B., Pensacola, Fla.

A. If you do not have any children under 18 years of age and he is 26 years old and unless he has served for a period of not less than 32 months beginning on or after May 1, 1940, on active duty not less than 75 per cent of the time and unless he applied for and received from the war shipping administration a certificate certifying that he has completed a period of substantially continuous service in the merchant marine, he is subject to the selective service law and may be drafted.

Q. I am a widow with six children under 18 years of age and I am 50 years old and not able to do much work. I had a son killed in France in 1944. I was dependent on him. His wife has remarried. He had his insurance made to her, but he told me he wished he had made half of it to me although he never did. Can I get a part of it now?—Mrs. M. O., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. No, you cannot obtain the insurance. If you are a dependent mother, however, you are entitled to a pension for the death of your son killed in action. Suggest you contact your Veterans' administration office in Cincinnati and give them the details. Your local Red Cross or any American Legion post will help you.

Q. My boy friend has re-enlisted in the army for a three-year period. He has married but separated from his wife and now he wants to get a divorce and marry me. Can he apply and receive this while still in service, now stationed in Germany?—S. P., Havre de Grace, Md.

A. Yes, his papers may be filed in either his own home county or that of his wife. He may designate some person with power of attorney to file his papers and act for him. In most towns the American Legion has a legal committee from which legal service is furnished free to soldiers. Suggest you contact the legal committee of your American Legion post.

Q. Could you give me some information about the 615th port company? When did it land in the states and where is it now?—V. S., Conder, N. C.

Confined Turkeys May Be Profitable

Many Advantages Seen For This System—But!

Excellent turkeys may be raised in confinement. Better control can be secured. The method is well adapted for growers with small-sized flocks, for late-hatched birds that are not ready for range before fall weather begins, where there is danger of soil contamination, on high-priced land or on farms with limited acreage. Also the problem of predators, etc., may make it advisable to grow turkeys confined.

Turkeys on range at Pennsylvania experiment station. Range is seeded to orchard grass and Ladino clover.

Acreage, topography, drainage and texture of the soil are other important factors that H. H. Kauffman of Pennsylvania state college recommends be considered when ranging turkeys.

Labor, expense of equipment, overhead expenses, etc., are often smaller when large flocks are reared on range than in confinement.

In hilly country the turkeys should be moved to the valleys in the fall, as they reach maturity and the season of stormy weather approaches.

Japanese Long-Horned

Weevil Invades U. S.

Another native insect pest of Japan may prove a menace to America if not destroyed in time, says Harry B. Weiss, chief of the N. J. bureau of plant industry. The Japanese long-horned weevil which has been introduced into the United States.

Japanese long-horned weevil was first discovered by Weiss in 1916.

The adults are primarily foliage feeders on more than 100 host plants, including annuals, perennials, shrubs, deciduous trees and evergreens. The use of 25 per cent Cryolite dust was found effective at Connecticut in the control of the Japanese long-horned weevil.

Fertilize Your Apple

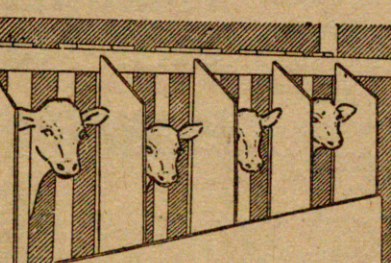

Trees During October

Late September, October and November is the time for making a fall application of fertilizer on bearing apple trees.

The nitrogen which gets into the trees this fall is an insurance that the trees will get off to a good start next spring, believes D. S. Brown of the University of Illinois.

For trees of good vigor, an application of sulfate of ammonia, or its equivalent in another nitrogen carrier, at the rate of from one-fourth to one-half pound per year of tree age may be used. The fall application should be followed by another at or before time of bloom in the spring.

Partition for Calves

When calves are placed in the barn for feeding, complete partitions should be erected in order that each calf secures its proper amount of food. Proper growth cannot be accomplished when calves of various ages and sizes are allowed to compete for their daily ration.

Outbreaks of European

Red Mites in Orchards

Because of the fact that DDT does not kill European red mites but does destroy certain of the insects that prey on this pest, the increase of the mites in orchards is of vital concern.

While the feeding of the insect during September and October will have little effect upon the fruit crop, they do injure the tree permanently. A dinitro spray, D-4, or summer oil spray is effective.

No Dueling Pistol Till 200 Years After Gun Invented

The pistol was not used in a duel of honor until 1759, or more than 200 years after its invention, says Collier's. Although dueling was gradually being suppressed, the introduction of the weapon increased its prevalence and resulted in the development of the dueling pistol.

For nearly a century afterward, the gunsmiths of Europe vied with one another in making these firearms, pairs of which, enclosed in elaborate cases, sold at prices ranging up to $4,000.

PICK YOUR CORN EARLY!

Dry It In Crib, with Behlen All-Steel
Ventilators and Tunnels

New, modern, fast way to dry corn. No more waiting for corn to dry in fields. Pick early, when mechanical pickers work best. Crib it, and let Behlen Ventilators and Tunnels dry corn faster than you ever dreamed possible.

GOODBYE TO CORN BORERS!

Agricultural colleges and experimental stations recommend picking early, to help control corn borers. You get your corn into cribs to dry, and shred or chop stalks and plow under before ground freezes, to kill the borers.

Behlen Tunnels not only ventilate, but are very handy for shelling. Just run sheller "drag" into tunnel, as at left. Pull out tunnel sections one by one. Corn drops onto conveyor belt. Saves hours of labor!

COME IN NOW!

Don't wait. We have Behlen All-Steel Ventilators and Corn Tunnels on hand now. But due to present industrial situation, we cannot promise we will get any more this fall. We strongly urge you to come in right away, while we are still able to supply you. Cost is less than for old-style wood ventilators.
